

ENGINEERS IRELAND - CORK REGION CPD LECTURE SERIES

Managing your Career in Challenging Times

About the event:

This talk highlights how businesses and individuals should look to career management as a way of developing the flexibility to adapt to changing business and economic circumstances. We will briefly examine the business case for supporting career management to enable businesses to develop the competencies required to respond to changing business needs. From an individual perspective we look at the need for individuals to take even greater responsibility for their own career management. During the Celtic Tiger career management was perhaps something that many put on the “nice to do” list but now it needs to be on the “need to do list”. We will cover the various processes and tools that businesses and individuals can use to support career management.
